

(as of 11/03/2022)

Current Board Members and Executive Director

Alanna Irving is the Executive Director of OCF. Irving is also a co-founder of Loomio (for collective decision making), CoBudget (for participatory budgeting), and Enspiral (a cooperative network of social entrepreneurs). Irving says “I explore bossless leadership, opensource org dev, cooperative governance, participatory technology, impact entrepreneurship, and collaborating with money— for a radically optimistic future.” She also serves as COO of Open Collective Inc.

Andrew Trask is an OCF Board Member and the Creator & Leader of one of the largest collectives on Open Collective Foundation - called OpenMined. He is also a PhD Student at the University of Oxford. [Current Term Start: May 2022]

Pia Mancini is an OCF Board Member and Co-Founder & CEO at Open Collective, actively working to transition OC from a privately owned company to a structure that allows us to share power and revenue with you via #e2c. Pia's background is in participatory political movements in Argentina and next-paradigm governance through open technology. [Current Term Start: July 2022]

Kaitlin Thaney is an OCF Board Member and the Executive Director of Invest in Open Infrastructure, a non-profit initiative dedicated to improving funding and resourcing for open technologies and systems supporting research and scholarship. She previously served as the Endowment Director for the Wikimedia Foundation, where she led development of a fund to sustain the future of Wikipedia and free knowledge. She's a Trustee of LYRASIS, a technology and services nonprofit serving higher education, libraries, archives and museums; and Code for Science & Society, a fiscal sponsor serving the open source and public interest technology sectors. [Current Term Start: July 2022]

Angie Kim has served as President and CEO for the Center for Cultural Innovation \(CCI\), a California-based knowledge and financial services incubator for individual artists, since 2015. She is also the founding director of CCI's national pooled fund program, AmbitioUS, which invests in alternative economic paradigms and federated infrastructure for those most dispossessed—primarily African American and Native American communities—who are seeking financial self-determination in order to preserve and support their cultural identity and artistic expressions on their own terms. [Current Term Start: June 2022]

Hafidha Acuay is deeply involved in capacity building for the future of the solidarity economy movement, in terms of both systems and people power, and has deep experience on the ground with two fiscally-sponsored organizations. As Managing Director of PeoplesHub, she determines best practices for remote office management and technology, and trains in online methodology. [Current Term Start: June 2022]

